PROFILE

Access information from anywhere in any format

Data digitization converts data from its physical form into a digital format, making it easier to manage, store, and access information. For organizations with large amounts of paper-based records, digitization is crucial and helps them to save money by eliminating the need for physical storage space and personnel to maintain it otherwise. By digitizing their data, organizations can also make better business decisions by finding trends and patterns in their business operations.

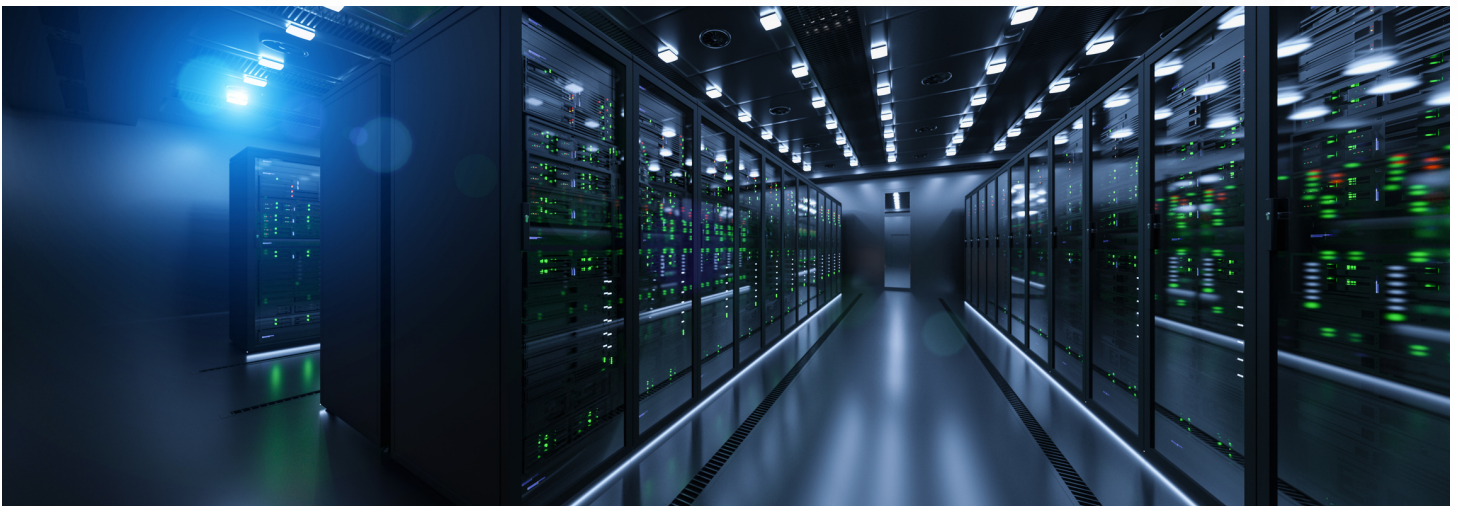

Why Digitize?

- Easy search and retrieval of information
- Reduce paper usage and minimize physical storage
- Enhance information security
- Preserve documents for a longer period
- Reduce document management costs
- Maximize operational efficiency
- Protect data from natural disasters and other calamities
- Better data recovery and backup

The need for eDMS

Every organization generates and maintains stacks of documents in various departments for statutory and compliance . the number of documents in all the departments grows over the period of time and occupy huge storage area in a premium office space.

Sometimes the documents are misplaced or mis-filed. Employees are spending Considerble time in searching and retrieving documents.

There were many occurrences of "Destruction Of Documents" by calamities like floods and fires .The printed contents in documents also fade away due to acidic nature of the paper and frequently changing climatic conditions . Termites also contribute their part in destroying the important documents .
